

ABC THIS WEEK WITH DAVID BRINKLEY
23 September 1984

EXCERPTED

GEORGE WILL

JEANE KIRKPATRICK, U.S. AMBASSADOR TO U.N.

WILL: Well, is it a failure of intelligence services? Then we never seem to learn. Is that it? After three of these bombings we don't know who did it. KIRKPATRICK: Well, obviously we don't know as much as we need to, you know, and as we wish we did. This is, but look, again, I think we're falling into this, 'it must be our fault syndrome.' You know, I think we're falling into the 'blame America first syndrome' in this whole discussion because we're not really facing the difficulty of the problem, and the measures that have been taken already, and the fact that there's an investigating team, too, on the spot, and we're going to take more measures.

* * * * *

EXCERPTED

3